LOW EMISSION AND TECHNOLOGY MINERALS CONFERENCE

INCORPORATING THE AUSTRALIAN URANIUM CONFERENCE

About the Conference

With low emissions energy becoming more important than ever, the Australian Uranium Conference is being modified, broadening the scope to include other metals and minerals produced in Australia, which along with uranium, are critical in the production of low emissions electricity.

This conference, now in its twelfth year has been the leading event in Australia for the Uranium sector. Now expanded, the conference will look at minerals such as Rare Earths Elements, Lithium, Graphite, Zinc, Cobalt and others relevant to cleaner energy and energy storage.

Boasting between 220 and 600 delegates attending over the past few years from countries such as Australia, Canada, France, Germany, Japan, UK, Singapore and USA as well as many others, this event has been the 'go to event' for these sectors. With over 44% of attendees being retail, corporate and industry investment based and with the chance to meet commodity buyers, brokers, funds, retail investors and government representatives, this event has been the number one event for the Uranium and Rare Earths Industry and will now be the number one event for all Low Emission and Technology Minerals.
